LOCAL WELCOME

Welcome to Cornwall! As joint Chairs of Celtic Media Festival's local committee for 2014, we're delighted to welcome delegates to the beautiful St Ives.

It's an exciting time for us in Cornwall. With such a rich history and tradition of art and culture, we can't think of a better place for Celtic Media Festival to be celebrating its 35th year. Cornwall and Cornish identity is truly something to be proud of. We're lucky to live in such a beautiful location and are thrilled to be able to share this with delegates.

Cornwall is not just a pretty location. We are a community of filmmakers and artists, striving to create a sustainable television and film industry that reflects Cornwall and our triumphs and struggles accurately. Since Cornish was recognised as a European minority language in 2003, there has been a sustained effort to make it more prevalent. Festivals like Celtic Media Festival help to highlight this cause and shed light on the talent that exists in Cornwall.

We'd like to extend our heartfelt thanks to all the members of the local committee for their enthusiasm and support, as well as all our local, national and international sponsors. We sincerely hope that the contacts and friendships made at Celtic Media Festival 2014 carry on beyond the event and lead to exciting and fruitful opportunities for everyone.

ARTWORK

Moving venue from year to year, we at the Celtic Media Festival are lucky enough to have a wealth of stories on which to base our design. The girl that you'll see on your brochure and t-shirt comes from one of these tales: the story of how St Ives was founded.

In the 5th Century, a young Irish noblewoman, St Ia, stood on the Irish shoreline. Her sisters had departed for Cornwall and left her behind, feeling that she was too young for the arduous sea voyage. Ia was distraught, and in her grief, she began to pray. Noticing a little leaf floating in the waves, she touched it with her staff. Instead of sinking, though, the leaf grew and grew. Ia, realising that this was a sign from God, stepped onto the leaf, and sailed it like a raft across the Celtic Sea to Cornwall. Her arrival led to the founding of the beautiful town of St Ives.

Ow chanjya le a vledhen dhe vledhen, ni dhe'n gool Media Keltek yw feusik lowr dhe gavos bern a hwedhlow may hyllyn selya agan desin. An voves a welowgh y'gas folennik ha'gas krys-t a dheu dhyworth onan an hwedhlow ma: an hwedhel a fatel veu selys Porth Ia.

ST IVES

Winner of a showcase of national awards including best family holiday destination by Coast magazine and one of the 10 best European beach destinations compiled by TripAdvisor. St Ives is a seemingly subtropical oasis where the beaches are golden, the vegetation lush and the light piercingly bright. It's no wonder then that the town has been attracting artists for decades who come to capture the area's undeniable natural beauty.

It started with J.M.W. Turner and the marine artist Henry Moore who first came to St Ives in the mid-1800s and since then the town has become a magnet for some of the world's greatest painters, sculptors and ceramists. St Ives's arty connections are reflected in the numerous galleries and exhibitions dotted around the town and combine that with a great surfing beach, plenty of pavement cafes, ancient pubs, top notch eateries and a fascinating working harbour. St Ives is deservedly one of Cornwall's top destinations.

A NEW TRANSFORMED UNIVERSITY

Studying Film and Media in Carmarthen

Our location in West Wales is unique. Our Film and Media students have taken inspiration from the unspoilt beauty of the landscape and coastline, and the opportunities it presents to those interested in environment, wildlife, sports, and culture.

BA (Hons) Film and Visual Culture

Combine the theoretical and academic analysis of film and visual media, with practical and creative approaches.

Engage in all stages of film making, from conception, through pre-production and production, and on to publication and exhibition.

Gain the business skills needed to work as entrepreneurs or as freelancers in this field, and experience working for a variety of clients.

BA (Hons) New Media Production

Create a body of production work using a variety of digital media technologies under expert tuition.

Explore the creative options for delivering an interactive narrative in a variety of formats such as filmmaking, animation, photography and/or games.

Develop employability skills, with specific opportunities for work placement and business planning.

ELIZABETH STEWART- CORNWALL

Elizabeth Stewart is a fluent Cornish speaker and has spoken the language since childhood. She specialised in medieval Cornish drama at the University of Warwick and then returned to Cornwall to become one of the first two paid officers to be employed to promote and develop the Cornish language when it was recognised under the European Charter for Regional or Minority Languages in 2002. In this role she produced a number of multimedia resources, including two series of an online TV series for learners, a DVD of action songs for children and three CD Roms in the Eurotalk range. Elizabeth has been involved in several Cornish language films, has sat on the steering group for Cornwall Film Festival and regularly undertakes a range of voice work in both Cornish and English, including collaborating with BBC Radio 2 Folk Award winner, Jackie Oates, on her 2011 album, 'Saturnine'.

Elizabeth currently works at Truro Cathedral as a producer for large scale, special services such as weddings, funerals and charity services. She lives in Truro and runs an informal conversation group in the city for Cornish speakers and learners of all levels. Northern Ireland is fast becoming the "go to" location for major film and television production in Europe. How did this come about, and has it had any positive effects on the local production community?
Chair: Amanda Millen, Panel: Richard Williams

11:30 - 11:45

MORNING BREAK

11:45 - 13:00
TRELAWNEY

COMMISSIONING THE FUTURE
The first goal for most production companies remains getting their content commissioned for broadcast, whatever additional platforms it might occupy after that. But what are commissioning editors looking for before they release that crucial funding, without which the project won't happen?
Is the golden era of commissioning coming to an end? An era of exponential change in the broadcast and linear broadcast landscape, in a time of exponential change what should Indies be doing to get their attention and their funding?

RADIO IS THE FUTURE

As we focus more and more on emerging technologies that will play their part in the "always-on" content revolution, one platform – Radio – is already at the party. Imagine a medium that audiences can engage with anytime, anywhere, a medium that is device neutral, safe to use in-car, portable for listen-back while exercising or at work, and distributable globally. That's Radio. A panel of experts from across the industry discuss why Radio not only matters now, but why it should continue to matter to public and commercial broadcasters alike. With so many of us rightly looking to the future, we have in our hands a medium that is in many ways already future-proofed. Are we making the most of Radio?
